

COMMUNITY HEALTH WORKERS

What do they do?

The purpose of a Community Health Worker (CHW) is to help identify any barriers that are preventing you from receiving proper healthcare, as well as connecting you with any resources or social services in the community that might be beneficial to you. A CHW can:

- Help you connect with a Primary Care Provider and establish routine and preventative healthcare.
- Assist you with scheduling medical appointments and accompany you to appointments when necessary.
- Assist you with any questions you have about medication or treatments.
- Connect you with other services and resources in the community that may benefit you.
- Help you address any conflicts you may have with your health care clinic, agencies, or social services that you work with.
- Help you address barriers, such as transportation, communication, or support that prevent you from accessing health care, and connect you with services in the community to break down these barriers.

We will work with you to assist you in navigating the complex healthcare system and help you achieve any goals you may have for improving your health.

Together, we can identify any challenges you may have improving your health, and find solutions to break down those barriers.

You can count on us to be an advocate for your better health, wellness, and life.
